Click here to search the Library catalogue, or refine your search by selecting one of the options in the dropdown list. Ensure works are spelled correctly. If you search using ‘Library catalog’, you may use multiple terms and/or keywords; for example, if you know the name of this author and want to find all the titles he wrote on liturgy, type in Schmemann liturgy; if you want the Anchor Bible’s commentary on Mark, type in Anchor Bible Mark (searching is not case-sensitive). Do not use inverted commas for a phrase or title search.

The Advanced Search enables you to include the Publisher name, Publishing date and more specific cataloguing fields, providing a more targeted search.

Most book list titles will be on reserve, which means you will find them on the Reserves shelves. These titles are only available for a week and only two may be borrowed at one time from one subject area.

You can log in here to access your personal information, change your password, create and look at your private lists, renew books, and put holds on titles. It is also possible to log in once you have begun searching.
This YouTube video gives you a broad overview of the Koha Library System. It is particularly useful in describing which functions are available to you when you log in to your account. Be aware that the library system shown is for a public library and differs somewhat from our own.

The noticeboard is used to notify students of changed Library opening hours and important dates during the term. It is also used to notify students of unexpected Library closures, so it’s worth looking at if you are making a special trip to visit the Library. (It’s always best to call first!)

Search results – single title

This search resulted in only one title being found.

There is one copy of this title, which is currently available.

Most titles contain subject headings, which provide a useful way to search for relevant texts. You can also search on any highlighted text, such as the author (Pitre, Brant James) or the publisher (Doubleday).

The call number tells you where to find the book on the shelves. The books are arranged numerically, then alphabetically within each number. This book is part of the Non-fiction collection, which is the general collection, and can be found in the general stacks.
A title search on Old Testament produced a number of titles. Search results can be seen by scrolling down the page and moving from page to page. Click on an individual title for more details (see Search results – single title).

Refine your search by selecting titles by a particular author, series - not shown in this example - or topic (subject heading).

Click on the box to the left of the title to ‘Add to’ an existing list that you have created, or to place a Hold if the title has been checked out. You will be prompted to log in to your account if you have not already done so.

If the title is an electronic resource, availability will appear as follows:

- Online Access: Electronic resource
- Availability: No copies available

To access the title, click on the ‘Electronic resource’ link.
